- 4. The House Armed Services Committee will be chaired by Congressman Dewey Short, of Missouri, who has always been friendly to CIA. The next ranking members of the Committee are Congressmen Leslie C. Arens, of Illinois, W. Sterling Cole, of New York, and Paul W. Shafer, of Michigan. As Congressman Areas presumably will resume his role of assistant Majority Leader, he will probably not be very active on the Committee. Congressman Cole will become, in all probability, the Vice Chairman of the Joint Congressional Committee on Atomic Energy. This may place CIA legislation in the hands of Congressman Shafer, who handled it in the 80th Congress. Mr. Shafer does not have a very deep understanding of CIA problems and has not been briefed on our activities in general. It would appear advisable to attempt to place CIA legislation in the hands of Congressman Short initially in the hopes that it will be handled with the same expedition and discretion with which it was handled by Congressman Vinson. The latter will continue as the ranking minority member of the Committee.
- 5. Congressman John Taber, of New York, will become Chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, with Congressman Wigglesworth, of Massachusetts, as the number two man. The latter may also chair the subcommittee handling the military budget and CIA funds. Clarence Cannon, the present Committee Chairman, will become the ranking minority member, and Congressman Mahon has also been re-elected.
- 6. In all probability Senator Hickenlooper, of Iowa, will become Chairman of the Joint Congressional Committee on Atomic Energy, with Congressman Cole, of New York, as Vice Chairman. Senator Russell, of Georgia, and Congressman Durham, of North Carolina, will be the ranking minority members.
- 7. Senator Wiley, of Wisconsin, will become Chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, and Congressman Chiperfield, of Illinois, will become Chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee.
